The 2013 Gerald D. Hines Student Urban Design Competition Is Underway!

160 teams from 70 universities in the U.S. and Canada are currently developing solutions for a site in Minneapolis's Downtown East neighborhood, nearby to the site of the new Minnesota Vikings stadium.

Download this year's competition brief.

The ULI/Gerald D. Hines Student Urban Design Competition, now in its eleventh year, is an urban design and development challenge for graduate students. The Hines Competition challenges multidisciplinary student teams to devise a comprehensive development program for a real, large-scale site. Teams of five students representing at least three disciplines have two weeks to develop solutions that include drawings, site plans, tables, and market-feasible financial data.

This is an ideas competition; there is no expectation that any of the submitted schemes will be applied to the site. The winning team will receive $50,000 and the finalist teams $10,000 each.

Email udcompetition@uli.org with any questions.

Catching Up With Past Hines Competition Participants

Over 4,000 students have participated in the Hines Competition since its first year in 2003. We conducted a series of interviews with past Hines Competition finalists and winners about their experience competing and how both ULI and the competition have had an impact on their professional lives.
